THE PRISON HOUSE

I

SATAN SPEAKS

I AM Nature, the Mighty Mother,
I am the law : ye have none other.

I am the flower and the dewdrop fresh,
I am the lust in your itching flesh.

I am the battle's filth and strain,
I am the widow's empty pain.

I am the sea to smother your breath,
I am the bomb, the falling death.

I am the fact and the crushing reason
To thwart your fantasy's new-born treason.

I am the spider making her net,
I am the beast with jaws blood-wet.

I am a wolf that follows the sun
And I will catch him ere day be done.

II

FRENCH NOCTURNE

(MONCHY-LE-PREUX)

LONG leagues on either hand the trenches spread
And all is still ; now even this gross line
Drinks in the frosty silences divine,
The pale, green moon is riding overhead.

The jaws of a sacked village, stark and grim,
Out on the ridge have swallowed up the sun,
And in one angry streak his blood has run
To left and right along the horizon dim.

There comes a buzzing plane : and now, it seems Flies straight into the moon. Lo ! where he steers Across the pallid globe and surely nears
In that white land some harbour of dear dreams !

False, mocking fancy ! Once I too could dream,
Who now can only see with vulgar eye

FRENCH NOCTURNE

That he's no nearer to the moon than I
And she's a stone that catches the sun's beam.

What call have I to dream of anything ?
I am a wolf. Back to the world again,
And speech of fellow-brutes that once were men
Our throats can bark for slaughter : cannot sing.

THE SATYR

WHEN the flowery hands of spring
Forth their woodland riches fling,
Through the meadows, through the valleys
Goes the satyr carolling.

From the mountain and the moor,
Forest green and ocean shore
All the faerie kin he rallies
Making music evermore.

See ! the shaggy pelt doth grow
On his twisted shanks below,
And his dreadful feet are cloven
Though his brow be white as snow—

Though his brow be clear and white
And beneath it fancies bright,
Wisdom and high thoughts are woven
And the musics of delight,

THE SATYR

Though his temples too be fair
Yet two horns are growing there
    Bursting forth to part asunder
All the riches of his hair.

Faerie maidens he may meet
Fly the horns and cloven feet,
    But, his sad brown eyes with wonder
Seeing—stay from their retreat.

VICTORY

ROLAND is dead, Cuchulain's crest is low,
The battered war-gear wastes and turns to rust,
And Helen's eyes and Iseult's lips are dust
And dust the shoulders and the breasts of snow.

The faerie people from our woods are gone,
No Dryads have I found in all our trees.
No Triton blows his horn about our seas
And Arthur sleeps far hence in Avalon.

The ancient songs they wither as the grass
And waste as doth a garment waxen old,
All poets have been fools who thought to mould
A monument more durable than brass.

For these decay : but not for that decays
The yearning, high, rebellious spirit of man
That never rested yet since life began
From striving with red Nature and her ways,

VICTORY

Now in the filth of war, the baresark shout
Of battle, it is vexed. And yet so oft
Out of the deeps, of old, it rose aloft
That they who watch the ages may not doubt.

Though often bruised, oft broken by the rod,
Yet, like the phœnix, from each fiery bed
Higher the stricken spirit lifts its head
And higher—till the beast become a god.

V

IRISH NOCTURNE

Now the grey mist comes creeping up
From the waste ocean's weedy strand
And fills the valley, as a cup
Is filled of evil drink in a wizard's hand ;
And the trees fade out of sight,
Like dreary ghosts unhealthily,
Into the damp, pale night,
Till you almost think that a clearer eye could see
Some shape come up of a demon seeking apart
His meat, as Grendel sought in Harte
The thanes that sat by the wintry log—Grendel or the shadowy mass
Of Balor, or the man with the face of clay,
The grey, grey walker who used to pass
Over the rock-arch nightly to his prey.
But here at the dumb, slow stream where the willows hang,

SPOOKS

LAST night I dreamed that I was come again
Unto the house where my beloved dwells
After long years of wandering and pain.

And I stood out beneath the drenching rain
And all the street was bare, and black with night,
But in my true love's house was warmth and light.

Yet I could not draw near nor enter in,
And long I wondered if some secret sin
Or old, unhappy anger held me fast ;

Till suddenly it came into my head
That I was killed long since and lying dead—
Only a homeless wraith that way had passed.

So thus I found my true love's house again
And stood unseen amid the winter night
And the lamp burned within, a rosy light,
And the wet street was shining in the rain.

VII

APOLOGY

If men should ask, Despoina, why I tell
Of nothing glad nor noble in my verse
To lighten hearts beneath this present curse
And build a heaven of dreams in real hell,

Go you to them and speak among them thus :
“ There were no greater grief than to recall, Down in the rotting grave where the lithe worms crawled,
Green fields above that smiled so sweet to us.”

Is it good to tell old tales of Troynovant
Or praises of dead heroes, tried and sage,
Or sing the queens of unforgotten age,
Brynhild and Maeve and virgin Bradamant ?

How should I sing of them ? Can it be good
To think of glory now, when all is done,

APOLOGY

And all our labour underneath the sun
Has brought us this—and not the thing we would ?

All these were rosy visions of the night,
The loveliness and wisdom feigned of old.
But now we wake. The East is pale and cold,
No hope is in the dawn, and no delight.

VIII

ODE FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY

Woe unto you, ye sons of pain that are this day in earth,

Now cry for all your torment : now curse your hour of birth

And the fathers who begat you to a portion nothing worth.

And Thou, my own belovèd, for as brave as ere thou art,

Bow down thine head, Despoina, clasp thy pale arms over it,

Lie low with fast-closed eyelids, clenched teeth, enduring heart,

For sorrow on sorrow is coming wherein all flesh has part.

The sky above is sickening, the clouds of God's hate cover it,

Body and soul shall suffer beyond all word or thought,

ODE FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY

He has not left one valley, one isle of fresh and green Where old friends could forgather amid the howling wreck.

It's vainly we are praying. We cannot, cannot check
The Power who slays and puts aside the beauty that has been.

It's truth they tell, Despoina, none hears the heart's complaining

For Nature will not pity, nor the red God lend an ear.
Yet I too have been mad in the hour of bitter paining And lifted up my voice to God, thinking that he could hear

The curse wherewith I cursed Him because the Good was dead.

But lo! I am grown wiser, knowing that our own hearts

Have made a phantom called the Good, while a few years have sped

Over a little planet. And what should the great Lord know of it

Who tosses the dust of chaos and gives the suns their parts?

ODE FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY

Hither and thither he moves them ; for an hour we see the show of it :

Only a little hour, and the life of the race is done.

And here he builds a nebula, and there he slays a sun

And works his own fierce pleasure. All things he shall fulfil,

And O, my poor Despoina, do you think he ever hears

The wail of hearts he has broken, the sound of human ill ?

He cares not for our virtues, our little hopes and fears,

And how could it all go on, love, if he knew of laughter and tears ?

Ah, sweet, if a man could cheat him ! If you could flee away

Into some other country beyond the rosy West,

To hide in the deep forests and be for ever at rest

From the rankling hate of God and the outworn world's decay !

IX
NIGHT

AFTER the fret and failure of this day,
And weariness of thought, O Mother Night,
Come with soft kiss to soothe our care away
And all our little tumults set to right ;
Most pitiful of all death's kindred fair,
Riding above us through the curtained air
On thy dusk car, thou scatterest to the earth
Sweet dreams and drowsy charms of tender night
And lovers' dear delight before to-morrow's birth.
Thus art thou wont thy quiet lands to leave
And pillared courts beyond the Milky Way, Wherein thou tarriest all our solar day
While unsubstantial dreams before thee weave
A foamy dance, and fluttering fancies play
About thy palace in the silver ray
Of some far, moony globe. But when the hour,
The long-expected comes, the ivory gates

NIGHT

Open on noiseless hinge before thy bower
Unbidden, and the jewelled chariot waits
With magic steeds. Thou from the fronting rim Bending to urge them, whilst thy sea-dark hair
Falls in ambrosial ripples o'er each limb,
With beautiful pale arms, untrammelled, bare
For horsemanship, to those twin chargers fleet
Dost give full rein across the fires that glow
In the wide floor of heaven, from off their feet Scattering the powdery star-dust as they go.
Come swiftly down the sky, O Lady Night,
Fall through the shadow-country, O most kind,
Shake out thy strands of gentle dreams and light
For chains, wherewith thou still art used to bind
With tenderest love of careful leeches' art
The bruised and weary heart
In slumber blind.

TO SLEEP

I WILL find out a place for thee, O Sleep—
A hidden wood among the hill-tops green,
Full of soft streams and little winds that creep
    The murmuring boughs between.

A hollow cup above the ocean placed Where nothing rough, nor loud, nor harsh shall be,
But woodland light and shadow interlaced
    And summer sky and sea.

There in the fragrant twilight I will raise A secret altar of the rich sea sod, Whereat to offer sacrifice and praise
    Unto my lonely god :

Due sacrifice of his own drowsy flowers,
The deadening poppies in an ocean shell
Round which through all forgotten days and hours
    The great seas wove their spell.

TO SLEEP

So may he send me dreams of dear delight
And draughts of cool oblivion, quenching pain,
And sweet, half-wakeful moments in the night
    To hear the falling rain.

And when he meets me at the dusk of day
To call me home for ever, this I ask—
That he may lead me friendly on that way
    And wear no frightful mask.

XI

IN PRISON

I CRIED out for the pain of man,
I cried out for my bitter wrath
Against the hopeless life that ran
For ever in a circling path
From death to death since all began ;
Till on a summer night
I lost my way in the pale starlight
And saw our planet, far and small,
Through endless depths of nothing fall
A lonely pin-prick spark of light,
Upon the wide, enfolding night,
With leagues on leagues of stars above it,
And powdered dust of stars below—
Dead things that neither hate nor love it
Nor even their own loveliness can know,
Being but cosmic dust and dead.
And if some tears be shed,

IN PRISON

Some evil God have power,
Some crown of sorrows sit Upon a little world for a little hour—
Who shall remember ? Who shall care for it ?

XII

DE PROFUNDIS

COME let us curse our Master ere we die,
For all our hopes in endless ruin lie.
The good is dead. Let us curse God most High.

Four thousand years of toil and hope and thought Wherein men laboured upward and still wrought
New worlds and better, Thou hast made as naught.

We built us joyful cities, strong and fair,
Knowledge we sought and gathered wisdom rare.
And all this time you laughed upon our care,

And suddenly the earth grew black with wrong,
Our hope was crushed and silenced was our song,
The heaven grew loud with weeping. Thou art strong.

Come then and curse the Lord. Over the earth
Gross darkness falls, and evil was our birth
And our few happy days of little worth.

DE PROFUNDIS

Even if it be not all a dream in vain
—The ancient hope that still will rise again—
Of a just God that cares for earthly pain,

Yet far away beyond our labouring night,
He wanders in the depths of endless light,
Singing alone his musics of delight ;

Only the far, spent echo of his song
Our dungeons and deep cells can smite along,
And Thou art nearer. Thou art very strong.

O universal strength, I know it well,
It is but froth of folly to rebel,
For thou art Lord and hast the keys of Hell.

Yet I will not bow down to thee nor love thee,
For looking in my own heart I can prove thee,
And know this frail, bruised being is above thee.

Our love, our hope, our thirsting for the right,
Our mercy and long seeking of the light,
Shall we change these for thy relentless might ?

Laugh then and slay. Shatter all things of worth, Heap torment still on torment for thy mirth—
Thou art not Lord while there are Men on earth.

XIII

SATAN SPEAKS

I AM the Lord your God : even he that made
Material things, and all these signs arrayed Above you and have set beneath the race
Of mankind, who forget their Father's face
And even while they drink my light of day
Dream of some other gods and disobey
My warnings, and despise my holy laws,
Even tho' their sin shall slay them. For which cause, Dreams dreamed in vain, a never-filled desire
And in close flesh a spiritual fire,
A thirst for good their kind shall not attain,
A backward cleaving to the beast again.
A loathing for the life that I have given,
A haunted, twisted soul for ever riven Between their will and mine—such lot I give While still in my despite the vermin live.
They hate my world ! Then let that other God

SATAN SPEAKS

Come from the outer spaces glory-shod,
And from this castle I have built on Night
Steal forth my own thought's children into light,
If such an one there be. But far away
He walks the airy fields of endless day,
And my rebellious sons have called Him long
And vainly called. My order still is strong
And like to me nor second none I know.
Whither the mammoth went this creature too shall go.

XIV

THE WITCH

TRAPPED amid the woods with guile
They've led her bound in fetters vile
To death, a deadlier sorceress
Than any born for earth's distress
Since first the winner of the fleece Bore home the Colchian witch to Greece—
Seven months with snare and gin They've sought the maid o'erwise within The forest's labyrinthine shade.
The lonely woodman half afraid
Far off her ragged form has seen
Sauntering down the alleys green,
Or crouched in godless prayer alone
At eve before a Druid stone.
But now the bitter chase is won,
The quarry's caught, her magic's done,
The bishop's brought her strongest spell

THE WITCH

To naught with candle, book, and bell ;
With holy water splashed upon her,
She goes to burning and dishonour
Too deeply damned to feel her shame,
For, though beneath her hair of flame
Her thoughtful head be lowly bowed
It droops for meditation proud Impenitent, and pondering yet,
Things no memory can forget,
Starry wonders she has seen Brooding in the wildwood green
With holiness. For who can say
In what strange crew she loved to play,
What demons or what gods of old Deep mysteries unto her have told
At dead of night in worship bent
At ruined shrines magnificent,
Or how the quivering will she sent Alone into the great alone
Where all is loved and all is known,
Who now lifts up her maiden eyes
And looks around with soft surprise
Upon the noisy, crowded square,

THE WITCH

The city oafs that nod and stare,
The bishop's court that gathers there,
The faggots and the blackened stake
Where sinners die for justice' sake ?
Now she is set upon the pile,
The mob grows still a little while,
Till lo ! before the eager folk
Up curls a thin, blue line of smoke.
“ Alas ! ” the full-fed burghers cry,
“ That evil loveliness must die ! ”

XV

DUNGEON GRATES

So piteously the lonely soul of man
Shudders before this universal plan,
So grievous is the burden and the pain,
So heavy weighs the long, material chain
From cause to cause, too merciless for hate,
The nightmare march of unrelenting fate,
I think that he must die thereof unless Ever and again across the dreariness
There came a sudden glimpse of spirit faces,
A fragrant breath to tell of flowery places
And wider oceans, breaking on the shore
For which the hearts of men are always sore.
It lies beyond endeavour ; neither prayer
Nor fasting, nor much wisdom winneth there,
Seeing how many prophets and wise men
Have sought for it and still returned again

DUNGEON GRATES

With hope undone. But only the strange power
Of unsought Beauty in some casual hour
Can build a bridge of light or sound or form
To lead you out of all this strife and storm ;
When of some beauty we are grown a part
Till from its very glory's midmost heart
Out leaps a sudden beam of larger light Into our souls. All things are seen aright
Amid the blinding pillar of its gold, Seven times more true than what for truth we hold

In vulgar hours. The miracle is done
And for one little moment we are one
With the eternal stream of loveliness
That flows so calm, aloof from all distress
Yet leaps and lives around us as a fire
Making us faint with overstrong desire
To sport and swim for ever in its deep—
Only a moment.

O ! but we shall keep Our vision still. One moment was enough,
We know we are not made of mortal stuff.

THE PHILOSOPHER

Who shall be our prophet then,
Chosen from all the sons of men
To lead his fellows on the way
Of hidden knowledge, delving deep
To nameless mysteries that keep Their secret from the solar day !
Or who shall pierce with surer eye
This shifting veil of bittersweet
And find the real things that lie Beyond this turmoil, which we greet
With such a wasted wealth of tears ?
Who shall cross over for us the bridge of fears And pass in to the country where the ancient Mothers dwell ?
Is it an elder, bent and hoar
Who, where the waste Atlantic swell
On lonely beaches makes its roar,

THE PHILOSOPHER

In his solitary tower
Through the long night hour by hour
Pores on old books with watery eye
When all his youth has passed him by,
And folly is schooled and love is dead
And frozen fancy laid abed,
While in his veins the gradual blood
Slackens to a marish flood ?
For he rejoiceth not in the ocean's might,
Neither the sun giveth delight,
Nor the moon by night Shall call his feet to wander in the haunted forest lawn.

He shall no more rise suddenly in the dawn
When mists are white and the dew lies pearly
Cold and cold on every meadow,
To take his joy of the season early,
The opening flower and the westward shadow,
And scarcely can he dream of laughter and love,
They lie so many leaden years behind.
Such eyes are dim and blind,
And the sad, aching head that nods above
His monstrous books can never know

THE PHILOSOPHER

The secret we would find.
But let our seer be young and kind
And fresh and beautiful of show,
And taken ere the lustyhead
And rapture of his youth be dead,
Ere the gnawing, peasant reason
School him over-deep in treason
To the ancient high estate
Of his fancy's principate,
That he may live a perfect whole,
A mask of the eternal soul,
And cross at last the shadowy bar
To where the ever-living are.

XVII

THE OCEAN STRAND

O LEAVE the labouring roadways of the town,
The shifting faces and the changeful hue
Of markets, and broad echoing streets that drown
The heart's own silent music. Though they too
Sing in their proper rhythm, and still delight
The friendly ear that loves warm human kind,
Yet it is good to leave them all behind,
Now when from lily dawn to purple night
Summer is queen,
Summer is queen in all the happy land.
Far, far away among the valleys green
Let us go forth and wander hand in hand
Beyond those solemn hills that we have seen
So often welcome home the falling sun
Into their cloudy peaks when day was done—
Beyond them till we find the ocean strand
And hear the great waves run,

THE OCEAN STRAND

With the waste song whose melodies I'd follow
And weary not for many a summer day,
Born of the vaulted breakers arching hollow
Before they flash and scatter into spray.
On, if we should be weary of their play
Then I would lead you further into land
Where, with their ragged walls, the stately rocks
Shut in smooth courts and paved with quiet sand
To silence dedicate. The sea-god's flocks
Have rested here, and mortal eyes have seen
By great adventure at the dead of noon
A lonely nereid drowsing half a-swoon
Buried beneath her dark and dripping locks.

XVIII

NOON

Noon ! and in the garden bower
The hot air quivers o'er the grass,
The little lake is smooth as glass
And still so heavily the hour
Drags, that scarce the proudest flower
Pressed upon its burning bed
Has strength to lift a languid head :
—Rose and fainting violet
By the water's margin set
Swoon and sink as they were dead
Though their weary leaves be fed
With the foam-drops of the pool
Where it trembles dark and cool,
Wrinkled by the fountain spraying O'er it. And the honey-bee
Hums his drowsy melody
And wanders in his course a-straying

NOON

Through the sweet and tangled glade
With his golden mead o'erladen,
Where beneath the pleasant shade
Of the darkling boughs a maiden —Milky limb and fiery tress,
All at sweetest random laid—
Slumbers, drunken with the excess
Of the noontide's loveliness.

(IN SURREY)

THREE golden months while summer on us stole
I have read your joyful tale another time,
Breathing more freely in that larger clime
And learning wiselier to deserve the whole.

Your Spirit, Master, has been close at hand
And guided me, still pointing treasures rare,
Thick-sown where I before saw nothing fair
And finding waters in the barren land,

Barren once thought because my eyes were dim.
Like one I am grown to whom the common field
And often-wandered copse one morning yield
New pleasures suddenly ; for over him

Falls the weird spirit of unexplained delight,
New mystery in every shady place,

MILTON READ AGAIN

In every whispering tree a nameless grace,
New rapture on the windy seaward height.

So may she come to me, teaching me well
To savour all these sweets that lie to hand
In wood and lane about this pleasant land
Though it be not the land where I would dwell.

XX

SONNET

THE stars come out ; the fragrant shadows fall
About a dreaming garden still and sweet,
I hear the unseen bats above me bleat
Among the ghostly moths their hunting call,
And twinkling glow-worms all about me crawl.
Now for a chamber dim, a pillow meet
For slumbers deep as death, a faultless sheet,
Cool, white and smooth. So may I reach the hall
With poppies strewn where sleep that is so dear
With magic sponge can wipe away an hour
Or twelve and make them naught. Why not a year, Why could a man not loiter in that bower
Until a thousand painless cycles wore,
And then—what if it held him evermore ?

THE AUTUMN MORNING

SEE ! the pale autumn dawn
Is faint, upon the lawn
That lies in powdered white
Of hoar-frost dight.

And now from tree to tree
The ghostly mist we see Hung like a silver pall
To hallow all.

It wreathes the burdened air
So strangely everywhere
That I could almost fear
This silence drear

Where no one song-bird sings
And dream that wizard things
Mighty for hate or love
Were close above.

THE AUTUMN MORNING

White as the fog and fair
Drifting through middle air
In magic dances dread
Over my head.

Yet these should know me too
Lover and bondman true,
One that has honoured well
The mystic spell

Of earth's most solemn hours
Wherein the ancient powers
Of dryad, elf, or faun
Or leprechaun

Oft have their faces shown
To me that walked alone
Seashore or haunted fen
Or mountain glen.

Wherefore I will not fear
To walk the woodlands sere
Into this autumn day
Far, far away.

HESITATION

L'APPRENTI SORCIER

SUDDENLY there came to me
The music of a mighty sea
That on a bare and iron shore
Thundered with a deeper roar
Than all the tides that leap and run
With us below the real sun :
Because the place was far away,
Above, beyond our homely day,
Neighbouring close the frozen clime
Where out of all the woods of time,
Amid the frightful seraphim
The fierce, cold eyes of Godhead gleam, Revolving hate and misery
And wars and famines yet to be.
And in my dream I stood alone
Upon a shelf of weedy stone,
And saw before my shrinking eyes

L'APPRENTI SORCIER

The dark, enormous breakers rise,
And hover and fall with deafening thunder
Of thwarted foam that echoed under The ledge, through many a cavern drear,
With hollow sounds of wintry fear.
And through the waters waste and grey,
Thick-strown for many a league away,
Out of the toiling sea arose
Many a face and form of those Thin, elemental people dear
Who live beyond our heavy sphere.
And all at once from far and near,
They all held out their arms to me,
Crying in their melody, “ Leap in ! Leap in, and take thy fill
Of all the cosmic good and ill,
Be as the Living ones that know
Enormous joy, enormous woe,
Pain beyond thought and fiery bliss :
For all thy study hunted this,
On wings of magic to arise,
And wash from off thy filmèd eyes
The cloud of cold mortality,

L'APPRENTI SORCIER

To find the real life and be
As are the children of the deep !
Be bold and dare the glorious leap,
Or to thy shame, go, slink again
Back to the narrow ways of men.”
So all these mocked me as I stood
Striving to wake because I feared the flood.

ALEXANDRINES

THERE is a house that most of all on earth I hate.
Though I have passed through many sorrows and have been
In bloody fields, sad seas, and countries desolate, Yet most I fear that empty house where the grasses green
Grow in the silent court the gaping flags between,
And down the moss-grown paths and terrace no man treads
Where the old, old weeds rise deep on the waste garden beds.
Like eyes of one long dead the empty windows stare
And I fear to cross the garden, I fear to linger there,
For in that house I know a little, silent room

ALEXANDRINES

Where Someone's always waiting, waiting in the gloom

To draw me with an evil eye, and hold me fast—

Yet thither doom will drive me and He will win at last.

IN PRAISE OF SOLID PEOPLE

THANK God that there are solid folk
Who water flowers and roll the lawn,
And sit and sew and talk and smoke,
And snore all through the summer dawn.

Who pass untroubled nights and days
Full-fed and sleepily content,
Rejoicing in each other's praise,
Respectable and innocent.

Who feel the things that all men feel,
And think in well-worn grooves of thought,
Whose honest spirits never reel
Before man's mystery, overwrought.

IN PRAISE OF SOLID PEOPLE

Yet not unfaithful nor unkind,
With work-day virtues surely staid,
Theirs is the sane and humble mind,
And dull affections undismayed.

O happy people ! I have seen
No verse yet written in your praise,
And, truth to tell, the time has been
I would have scorned your easy ways.

But now thro' weariness and strife
I learn your worthiness indeed,
The world is better for such life
As stout, suburban people lead.

Too often have I sat alone
When the wet night falls heavily,
And fretting winds around me moan,
And homeless longing vexes me

IN PRAISE OF SOLID PEOPLE

For lore that I shall never know,
And visions none can hope to see,
Till brooding works upon me so
A childish fear steals over me.

I look around the empty room,
The clock still ticking in its place,
And all else silent as the tomb,
Till suddenly, I think, a face

Grows from the darkness just beside.
I turn, and lo ! it fades away,
And soon another phantom tide
Of shifting dreams begins to play,

And dusky galleys past me sail,
Full freighted on a faerie sea ;
I hear the silken merchants hail
Across the ringing waves to me

IN PRAISE OF SOLID PEOPLE

—Then suddenly, again, the room,
Familiar books about me piled,
And I alone amid the gloom,
By one more mocking dream beguiled.

And still no nearer to the Light,
And still no further from myself,
Alone and lost in clinging night
—(The clock's still ticking on the shelf).

Then do I envy solid folk
Who sit of evenings by the fire,
After their work and doze and smoke,
And are not fretted by desire.

O DWELLERS at the back of the North Wind,
What have we done to you ? How have we sinned
Wandering the Earth from Orkney unto Ind ?

With many deaths our fellowship is thinned,
Our flesh is withered in the parching wind,
Wandering the earth from Orkney unto Ind.

We have no rest. We cannot turn again
Back to the world and all her fruitless pain,
Having once sought the land where ye remain.

Some say ye are not. But, ah God ! we know
That somewhere, somewhere past the Northern snow
Waiting for us the red-rose gardens blow :

—The red-rose and the white-rose gardens blow
In the green Northern land to which we go, Surely the ways are long and the years are slow.

SONG OF THE PILGRIMS

We have forsaken all things sweet and fair,
We have found nothing worth a moment's care
Because the real flowers are blowing there.

Land of the Lotus fallen from the sun,
Land of the Lake from whence all rivers run,
Land where the hope of all our dreams is won !

Shall we not somewhere see at close of day
The green walls of that country far away,
And hear the music of her fountains play ?

So long we have been wandering all this while
By many a perilous sea and drifting isle,
We scarce shall dare to look thereon and smile.

Yea, when we are drawing very near to thee,
And when at last the ivory port we see Our hearts will faint with mere felicity :

But we shall wake again in gardens bright
Of green and gold for infinite delight,
Sleeping beneath the solemn mountains white,

SONG OF THE PILGRIMS

While from the flowery copses still unseen Sing out the crooning birds that ne'er have been Touched by the hand of winter frore and lean ;

And ever living queens that grow not old
And poets wise in robes of faerie gold
Whisper a wild, sweet song that first was told

Ere God sat down to make the Milky Way.
And in those gardens we shall sleep and play
For ever and for ever and a day.

Ah, Dwellers at the back of the North Wind,
What have we done to you ? How have we sinned,
That ye should hide beyond the Northern wind ?

Land of the Lotus, fallen from the Sun,
When shall your hidden, flowery vales be won
And all the travail of our way be done ?

Very far we have searched ; we have even seen
The Scythian waste that bears no soft nor green,
And near the Hideous Pass our feet have been.

SONG OF THE PILGRIMS

We have heard Syrens singing all night long
Beneath the unknown stars their lonely song
In friendless seas beyond the Pillars strong.

Nor by the dragon-daughter of Hypocras
Nor the vale of the Devil's head we have feared to pass, Yet is our labour lost and vain, alas !

Scouring the earth from Orkney unto Ind,
Tossed on the seas and withered in the wind,
We seek and seek your land. How have we sinned ?

Or is it all a folly of the wise,
Bidding us walk these ways with blinded eyes
While all around us real flowers arise ?

But, by the very God, we know, we know
That somewhere still, beyond the Northern snow

SONG

FAERIES must be in the woods
Or the satyrs' laughing broods—
Tritons in the summer sea,
Else how could the dead things be Half so lovely as they are ?
How could wealth of star on star
Dusted o'er the frosty night
Fill thy spirit with delight
And lead thee from this care of thine
Up among the dreams divine,
Were it not that each and all
Of them that walk the heavenly hall
Is in truth a happy isle,
Where eternal meadows smile,
And golden globes of fruit are seen
Where the Other People go

SONG

On the bright sward to and fro ?
Atoms dead could never thus Stir the human heart of us
Unless the beauty that we see
The veil of endless beauty be,
Filled full of spirits that have trod
Far hence along the heavenly sod
And seen the bright footprints of God.

XXVII

THE ASS

I WOKE and rose and slipt away
To the heathery hills in the morning grey.

In a field where the dew lay cold and deep
I met an ass, new-roused from sleep.

I stroked his nose and I tickled his ears,
And spoke soft words to quiet his fears.

His eyes stared into the eyes of me
And he kissed my hands of his courtesy.

“ O big, brown brother out of the waste,
How do thistles for breakfast taste ?

“ And do you rejoyce in the dawn divine
With a heart that is glad no less than mine ?

THE ASS

“ For, brother, the depth of your gentle eyes
Is strange and mystic as the skies :

“ What are the thoughts that grope behind,
Down in the mist of a donkey mind ?

“ Can it be true, as the wise men tell,
That you are a mask of God as well,

“ And, as in us, so in you no less Speaks the eternal Loveliness,

“ And words of the lips that all things know
Among the thoughts of a donkey go ?

“ However it be, O four-foot brother,
Fair to-day is the earth, our mother.

“ God send you peace and delight thereof,
And all green meat of the waste you love,

“ And guard you well from violent men Who'd put you back in the shafts again.”

THE ASS

But the ass had far too wise a head
To answer one of the things I said,

So he twitched his fair ears up and down
And turned to nuzzle his shoulder brown.

BALLADE MYSTIQUE

THE big, red house is bare and lone
The stony garden waste and sere
With blight of breezes ocean blown
To pinch the wakening of the year ;
My kindly friends with busy cheer
My wretchedness could plainly show.
They tell me I am lonely here—
What do they know ? What do they know ?

They think that while the gables moan
And casements creak in winter drear
I should be piteously alone
Without the speech of comrades dear ;
And friendly for my sake they fear,
It grieves them thinking of me so While all their happy life is near—

BALLADE MYSTIQUE

That I have seen the Dagda's throne
In sunny lands without a tear
And found a forest all my own
To ward with magic shield and spear,
Where, through the stately towers I rear
For my desire, around me go
Immortal shapes of beauty clear :
They do not know, they do not know.

L'ENVOI

The friends I have without a peer Beyond the western ocean's glow,
Whither the faerie galleys steer,
They do not know : how should they know ?

NIGHT

I KNOW a little Druid wood
Where I would slumber if I could
And have the murmuring of the stream
To mingle with a midnight dream,
And have the holy hazel trees
To play above me in the breeze,
And smell the thorny eglantine ;
For there the white owls all night long
In the scented gloom divine
Hear the wild, strange, tuneless song
Of faerie voices, thin and high
As the bat's unearthly cry,
And the measure of their shoon
Dancing, dancing, under the moon,
Until, amid the pale of dawn
The wandering stars begin to swoon. . . .
Ah, leave the world and come away !

NIGHT

The windy folk are in the glade,
And men have seen their revels, laid
In secret on some flowery lawn
Underneath the beechen covers.
Kings of old, I've heard them say,
Here have found them faerie lovers
That charmed them out of life and kissed
Their lips with cold lips unafraid,
And such a spell around them made
That they have passed beyond the mist
And found the Country-under-wave. . . .
Kings of old, whom none could save !

XXX

OXFORD

It is well that there are palaces of peace
And discipline and dreaming and desire,
Lest we forget our heritage and cease
The Spirit's work—to hunger and aspire :

Lest we forget that we were born divine,
Now tangled in red battle's animal net,
Murder the work and lust the anodyne,
Pains of the beast 'gainst bestial solace set.

But this shall never be : to us remains
One city that has nothing of the beast,
That was not built for gross, material gains,
Sharp, wolfish power or empire's gluttoned feast.

We are not wholly brute. To us remains
A clean, sweet city lulled by ancient streams,

OXFORD

A place of vision and of loosening chains,
A refuge of the elect, a tower of dreams.

She was not builded out of common stone
But out of all men's yearning and all prayer
That she might live, eternally our own,
The Spirit's stronghold—barred against despair.

XXXI

HYMN (FOR BOYS' VOICES)

ALL the things magicians do
Could be done by me and you
Freely, if we only knew.

Human children every day
Could play at games the faeries play
If they were but shown the way.

Every man a God would be Laughing through eternity
If as God's his eye could see.

All the wizardries of God—
Slaying matter with a nod,
Charming spirits with his rod,

With the singing of his voice
Making lonely lands rejoice, Leaving us no will nor choice,

HYMN

Drawing headlong me and you
As the piping Orpheus drew Man and beast the mountains through,

By the sweetness of his horn
Calling us from lands forlorn
Nearer to the widening morn—

All that loveliness of power
Could be man's peculiar dower,
Even mine, this very hour ;

We should reach the Hidden Land
And grow immortal out of hand,
If we could but understand !

We could revel day and night
In all power and all delight
If we learned to think aright.

XXXII

“ OUR DAILY BREAD ”

WE need no barbarous words nor solemn spell
To raise the unknown. It lies before our feet ;
There have been men who sank down into Hell
    In some suburban street,

And some there are that in their daily walks
Have met archangels fresh from sight of God,
Or watched how in their beans and cabbage-stalks
    Long files of faerie trod.

Often me too the Living voices call
In many a vulgar and habitual place,
I catch a sight of lands beyond the wall,
    I see a strange god's face.

And some day this will work upon me so
I shall arise and leave both friends and home
And over many lands a pilgrim go Through alien woods and foam,

“OUR DAILY BREAD”

Seeking the last steep edges of the earth
Whence I may leap into that gulf of light
Wherein, before my narrowing Self had birth,
Part of me lived aright.

XXXIII

HOW HE SAW ANGUS THE GOD

I HEARD the swallow sing in the eaves and rose
All in a strange delight while others slept,
And down the creaking stair, alone, tip-toes,
So carefully I crept.

The house was dark with silly blinds yet drawn,
But outside the clean air was filled with light,
And underneath my feet the cold, wet lawn
With dew was twinkling bright.

The cobwebs hung from every branch and spray Gleaming with pearly strands of laden thread,
And long and still the morning shadows lay
Across the meadows spread.

At that pure hour when yet no sound of man,
Stirs in the whiteness of the wakening earth,
Alone through innocent solitudes I ran Singing aloud for mirth.

HOW HE SAW ANGUS THE GOD

Till I had found the open mountain heath
Yellow with gorse, and rested there and stood
To gaze upon the misty sea beneath,
Or on the neighbouring wood,

—That little wood of hazel and tall pine
And youngling fir, where oft we have loved to see
The level beams of early morning shine
Freshly from tree to tree.

Though in the denser wood there's many a pool
Of deep and night-born shadow lingers yet
Where the new-wakened flowers are damp and cool
And the long grass is wet.

In the sweet heather long I rested there Looking upon the dappled, early sky,
When suddenly, from out the shining air
A god came flashing by.

Swift, naked, eager, pitilessly fair,
With a live crown of birds about his head,
Singing and fluttering, and his fiery hair,
Far out behind him spread,

HOW HE SAW ANGUS THE GOD

Streamed like a rippling torch upon the breeze
Of his own glorious swiftness : in the grass
He bruised no feathery stalk, and through the trees
I saw his whiteness pass.

But, when I followed him beyond the wood,
Lo ! he was changed into a solemn bull
That there upon the open pasture stood
And browsed his lazy full.

XXXV

HESPERUS

THROUGH the starry hollow
Of the summer night
I would follow, follow
Hesperus the bright,
To seek beyond the western wave
His garden of delight.

Hesperus the fairest
Of all gods that are,
Peace and dreams thou bearest
In thy shadowy car,
And often in my evening walks
I've blessed thee from afar.

Stars without a number,
Dust the noon of night,
Thou the early slumber
And the still delight

HESPERUS

Of the gentle twilit hours
Rulest in thy right.

When the pale skies shiver,
Seeing night is done,
Past the ocean-river,
Lightly thou dost run,
To look for pleasant, sleepy lands,
That never fear the sun.

Where, beyond the waters
Of the outer sea,
Thy triple crown of daughters
That guards the golden tree
Sing out across the lonely tide
A welcome home to thee.

And while the old, old dragon
For joy lifts up his head,
They bring thee forth a flagon
Of nectar foaming red,
And underneath the drowsy trees
Of poppies strew thy bed.

HESPERUS

Ah ! that I could follow
In thy footsteps bright,
Through the starry hollow
Of the summer night,
Sloping down the western ways
To find my heart's delight !

XXXVI

THE STAR BATH

A PLACE uplifted towards the midnight sky
Far, far away among the mountains old,
A treeless waste of rocks and freezing cold,
Where the dead, cheerless moon rode neighbouring by—

And in the midst a silent tarn there lay,
A narrow pool, cold as the tide that flows
Where monstrous bergs beyond Varanger stray, Rising from sunless depths that no man knows ;
Thither as clustering fireflies have I seen
At fixèd seasons all the stars come down To wash in that cold wave their brightness clean

And win the special fire wherewith they crown
The wintry heavens in frost. Even as a flock
Of falling birds, down to the pool they came.
I saw them and I heard the icy shock

THE STAR BATH

Of stars engulfed with hissing of faint flame —Ages ago before the birth of men Or earliest beast. Yet I was still the same That now remember, knowing not where or when.

XXXVII

TU NE QUÆSIERIS

For all the lore of Lodge and Myers
I cannot heal my torn desires,
Nor hope for all that man can speer
To make the riddling earth grow clear.
Though it were sure and proven well
That I shall prosper, as they tell,
In fields beneath a different sun
By shores where other oceans run,
When this live body that was I
Lies hidden from the cheerful sky,
Yet what were endless lives to me
If still my narrow self I be
And hope and fail and struggle still,
And break my will against God's will,
To play for stakes of pleasure and pain
And hope and fail and hope again,
Deluded, thwarted, striving elf

TU NE QUÆSIERIS

That through the window of my self
As through a dark glass scarce can see
A warped and masked reality ?
But when this searching thought of mine
Is mingled in the large Divine,
And laughter that was in my mouth
Runs through the breezes of the South,
When glory I have built in dreams
Along some fiery sunset gleams,
And my dead sin and foolishness
Grow one with Nature's whole distress,
To perfect being I shall win,
And where I end will Life begin.

XXXVIII

LULLABY

LULLABY ! Lullaby !

There's a tower strong and high

Built of oak and brick and stone,

Stands before a wood alone.

The doors are of the oak so brown

As any ale in Oxford town,

The walls are builded warm and thick

Of the old red Roman brick,

The good grey stone is over all

In arch and floor of the tower tall.

And maidens three are living there

All in the upper chamber fair,

Hung with silver, hung with pall,

And stories painted on the wall.

And softly goes the whirring loom

In my ladies' upper room,

For they shall spin both night and day

LULLABY

Until the stars do pass away.

But every night at evèning.

The window open wide they fling,

And one of them says a word they know

And out as three white swans they go,

And the murmuring of the woods is drowned

In the soft wings' whirring sound,

As they go flying round, around,

Singing in swans' voices high

A lonely, lovely lullaby.

WORLD'S DESIRE

Of the wet and waving forest, slanted all away, Because the driving Northern wind will not rest by night or day.

Yet the towers are sure above, very mighty is the stead,

The gates are made of ivory, the roofs of copper red.

Round and round the warders grave walk upon the walls for ever

And the wakeful dragons couch in the ports of ivory, Nothing is can trouble it, hate of the gods nor man's endeavour,

And it shall be a resting-place, dear heart, for you and me.

Through the wet and waving forest with an age-old sorrow laden

Singing of the world's regret wanders wild the faerie maiden,

Through the thistle and the brier, through the tangles of the thorn,

Till her eyes be dim with weeping and her homeless feet are torn.

WORLD'S DESIRE

Often to the castle gate up she looks with vain
endeavour,
For her soulless loveliness to the castle winneth never.
But within the sacred court, hidden high upon the mountain,
Wandering in the castle gardens lovely folk enough there be,
Breathing in another air, drinking of a purer fountain,
And among that folk, beloved, there's a place for you and me.

XL

DEATH IN BATTLE

OPEN the gates for me,
Open the gates of the peaceful castle, rosy in the West,
In the sweet dim Isle of Apples over the wide sea's breast,
Open the gates for me !

Sorely pressed have I been
And driven and hurt beyond bearing this summer day,
But the heat and the pain together suddenly fall away,
All's cool and green.

But a moment ago,
Among men cursing in fight and toiling, blinded I fought,
But the labour passed on a sudden even as a passing thought,
And now—alone !

Fairies and Fusiliers

Crown 8vo. Cloth. 3s. 6d. net. ♣ Captain Robert Graves, Royal Welch Fusiliers, is a son of Mr. Alfred Perceval Graves. He was badly wounded in 1916, and reported dead, but the report was happily "much exaggerated."

"Truth."—A musical ear, high spirits, and a promise of high poetic fulfilment indicated by two or three remarkably original and poignant lyrics characterise this young soldier's work.

GEORGE LEWIS

Spirits in Bondage

Crown 8vo. Cloth 3s. 6d. net. ♣ Lieut. G. S. Lewis, who is 20 years of age, was at Malvern College when the war broke out. In 1916 he took a classical scholarship at University College, Oxford, and a year later received his commission in the Somerset Light Infantry. He was wounded in front of Lillers in April, 1918.

THE GENERAL.

"Good morning ; good morning," the General said
When we met him last week on our way to the line.
Now the soldiers he smiled at are most of 'em dead,
And we're cursing his staff for incompetent swine.
"He's a cheery old card," grunted Harry to Jack
As they slogged up to Arras with rifle and pack.

But he did for them both by his plan of attack.

other Verses," by

To C. H. V.

What shall I bring to you, wife of mine,
When I come back from the war ?
A ribbon your dear brown hair to twine ?
A shawl from a Berlin store ?
Say, shall I choose you some Prussian hack
When the Uhlans we o'erwhelm ?
Shall I bring you a Potsdam goblet back
And the crest from a Prince's helm ?

Little you'd care what I laid at your feet,
Ribbon or crest or shawl—
What if I bring you nothing, sweet,
Nor maybe come home at all ?
Ah, but you'll know, Brave Heart, you'll know
Two things I'll have kept to send :
Mine honour for which you bade me go
And my love—my love to the end.

THE POSTHUMOUS WORKS OF ALGERNON CHARLES SWINBURNE.

Swinburne left a considerable number of unpublished works, both in prose and verse. Some of these have been privately printed in editions varying from seven to twenty copies, which are eagerly sought for by collectors. Others are still in manuscript. These, and also contributions to the press which have never before been collected, have now been brought together and are being edited by Mr. Edmund Gosse and Mr. Thomas J.
Wise. They will be published in due course in a series of volumes of which the first is now ready.

NOT DEAD.

Walking through trees to cool my heat and pain,
I know that David's with me here again.
All that is simple, happy, strong he is.
Caressingly I stroke
Rough bark of the friendly oak.
A brook goes bubbling by : the voice is his.
Turf burns with pleasant smoke ;
I laugh at chaffinch and at primroses.
All that is simple, happy, strong he is.
Over the whole wood in a little while Breaks his slow smile.

and Fantasy" by

ELYSIUM.

Hushed their feet fall
On the dewy grass :
In robes rhythmical
Shining they pass.

Lovers who for bliss
Grave and rare and deep Need no clasp, or kiss,
Or lovers' sleep.

Bridegroom and bride,
Though each walk alone,
Nothing shall divide
Their souls that are one.

XXIX.

If I could come again to that dear place Where once I came, where Beauty lived and moved,
Where, by the sea, I saw her face to face,
That soul alive by which the world has loved ;
If, as I stood at gaze among the leaves,
She would appear again as once before,
While the red herdsmen gathered up his sheaves
And brimming waters trembled up the shore ;
If, as I gazed, her Beauty that was dumb,
In that old time, before I learned to speak,
Would lean to me and revelation come,
Words to the lips and colour to the cheek,
Joy with its searing-iron would burn me wise ;
I should know all, all powers, all mysteries.

Broken Wing,"

THE VICTOR.

They brought their peacock-lutes of praise
And carven gems in jasper trays,
Rich stores of fragrant musk and myrrh,
And wreaths of scarlet nenuphar . . .
I had no offering that was meet,
And bowed my face upon his feet.

They brought him robes from regal looms,
Inwrought with pearl and silver blooms,
And sumptuous footcloths broiderèd
With beetle-wings and gleaming thread . . .
I had no offering that was meet,
And spread my hands beneath his feet.

They filled his courts with gifts of price,
With tiers of grain and towers of spice,
Tall jars of golden oil and wine,
And heads of camel and of kine . . .
I had no offering that was meet,
And laid my life before his feet.
